REIKI

Reiki is the Japanese word for conscious universal life force energy. Reiki is a form of “hands on healing” a non-invasive technique using universal energy to promote equilibrium and harmony within an individual through vital energy centers in our body, called chakras.

Chakras are seven energy centers through which a person receives and transmits energy associated with specific functions. Every human being has chakras.

In a perfect model, chakras function in a clockwise direction, processing energy upward from the tailbone to the crown of the head.

When chakras are not functioning properly, external symptoms are often manifested in the form of stress, fatigue, headaches, irritability, etc. Chakras are affected by lifestyle, environment, and negative thought patterns. Chakras are connected to and affect the entire body.

The advantages of Reiki are vast. Those who understand the relationship between mind, body and spirit will connect with these techniques and benefit from them. A form of energy therapy, Reiki compliments all other modalities of healing.

TESTIMONIAL

“Maggie has an extraordinary intuitive sense on what my body needs. She just taps in, creates an energy flow and I am in Heaven!”
Christina, Chicago

WHAT TO EXPECT

Most people report sensations of heat to various parts of the body. When energy is blocked, then released, heat sensory is normal. Also a feeling of “lightness” may be experienced during a treatment, most often presenting as a sense of calm.

WHAT DOES A TREATMENT CONSIST OF?

The first session consists of a consultation lasting approximately 30-45 minutes. A treatment plan is then devised accordingly to meet individual needs. A consultation consists of a “body-scan” to identify “weak” areas, then incorporating a plan of action to strengthen them. An initial visit is followed by a Reiki treatment. A treatment may last 45 minutes to 2 hours. Allot a minimum of 1.5 hours for the first visit.
